H. & S. MEETING IMPRESSIVE

One of the most interesting meetings of the Home and School Association for many months was that held last Monday evening at the Armouries. There was a very good attendance of an attentive and responsive audience. It was decided that the Association would assume the expenses of a delegate to the Convention of the Alberta Home and School Federation to the extent of $50.00 but a delegate has yet to be elected. A substantial sum of money was placed in the care of the Association by Mrs. Toole and will be identified for use as a recreation fund to be used for purposes of the activities in which she and her associates are interested.

After the business part of the meeting was concluded, the audience was treated to a very interesting talk by Mrs. White, the Home Economics teacher at Rosemary School, to which some of the scholars from the Bassano School are taken periodically for instruction. An amusing sketch was acted by a group of the girls from that class, made up of girls from Rosemary and from Bassano. It was a demonstration of one of the aspects of the teaching to which they are admitted in the class on Home Economics. It was well acted and well received by the audience.

The month of February this year is the month in which the founding of the Home and School movement is commemorated and the Bassano Association certainly did itself proud in that respect. With Mrs. Douglas Fraser acting as conductor of the ceremony and giving the meeting an outline history of the origin of the Home and School idea and ideals, four members of the audience took charge of the four candles placed in the centre of the room. At appropriate intervals, pauses were made in the rendition of the history. At the first pause one of the scholars lit the first candle "in honor of the founder of Home and School". At the second pause a parent lit the second candle "in honor of the International Federation of Home and School Associations". A teacher, at the third pause, lit the third candle "in honor of the Alberta Federation of Home and School Associations" and the last candle, a gold colored one, was lit by the President of the Bassano Home and School Association in its own honor. It was, altogether, a very impressive ceremony and a pleasant surprise to many. The next meeting of the Bassano Home and School Association will be held on March 19th.

ROCKWELL TOPS CURLERS

Bart Rockwell's High School rink won the Grand Challenge and the Grand Agregate at the Gem Men's Open Bonspiel which was concluded on February 15th. Good curling, boys, and congratulations!

Sea harvest essential by end of century

As farm lands will not be able to meet future food needs of the world's population, which is expected to reach four billion by the end of the century, it is essential to harvest the food in the sea.

This point is stressed in the Unesco Courier, published by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Today, it says, man gets only one percent of his food—fish and marine plants—from the sea—the annual yield—not counting whales—being about 26 million metric tons. If fishing methods were improved, both yield and consumption could be multiplied.

More use of the sea's plant life is also urged to feed both men and domestic animals. A single square mile of sea produces 13,000 tons of vegetation in an average year.

The sea can supply much-needed fertilizers, too. Each of its 328 million cubic miles holds 750 tons of nitrogen, 225 tons of phosphorus and nearly two million tons of potassium.

UNESCO is organizing a broader international attack on the problem of the sea. It has approved a world-wide programme of aid to oceanographic research in accord with the Food and Agriculture Organization, and has set up an advisory board on marine sciences.

The flesh of the octopus is used as food among the Chinese and Italians.

Old socks make good inner mitts

A practical solution to the problem of what to do with father's and children's discarded woollen socks, when the feet have become too badly worn to mend is to make them into sturdy warm mitts. They will last a long time, are ideal under leather mitts, and save the better woollen mitts for good.

Having been washed scores of times, they will not shrink or matt when treated to a dunking in mud puddles, and if one becomes lost, it is no disaster, as you can have several extra pairs on hand.

Using the cuff of the sock as the cuff of the mitt, measure desired length and cut off, rounding the end to follow the shape of the fingertips. Stitch across on the sewing machine, or by hand, making a double seam to insure against unravelling. If the top of the sock has been stretched so that it is too big for the wrist, take it in to fit snugly. Cut a slit on the inside edge of the mitt just below the cuff and shape to fit around the thumb.

Then, with the discarded foot of the sock folded lengthways along the instep, cut the thumb of the mitt, parallel to the folded edge. Sew along the side and across the end of the thumb. Now set the thumb into the mitt, darning the edges together to eliminate bumpy seams.

Join the two mitts together by sewing to the ends of a long piece of tape, pin centre of tape to the coat collar, and you have a warm pair of mitts that will not be lost by careless small-fry on their way to school or at play.

Western attitude threatening status Chinese mother-in-law

Western brides who look with apprehension on acquiring a mother-in-law have little to complain about by Chinese standards.

The first thing that a Chinese girl asks, when congratulating a friend on her engagement, is a whispered: "Yau kar phor mah?"—"Is there a mother-in-law?"

For, next to the husband, and sometimes before him, the most important person in a Chinese bride's life is her spouse's mother. Economy, filial piety and a devotion to pleasing the old lady are accepted as undeniable.

There are still in existence in the "enlightened" Chinese society of Singapore, mothers-in-law who insist, as a right that their son's wife should rise before the rest of the household, do the laundry, clean the house and prepare breakfast before anyone else is awake.

Hot water for washing and a cup of coffee as a mark of respect from the bride also are expected. Live with husband's parents

Chinese tradition, adhered to partly from respect and partly because of Singapore's housing shortage, demands that the young people live with the man's parents, as do all his brothers and their offspring.

In the old days, there was little friction. The girl knew what was expected of her and dared not lose face by having her up-bringing criticized if she failed to meet her mother-in-law's exacting standards.

But younger people, fed on American and European films and mixing with Westerners, are beginning to see that the word "family" should apply basically to a man, his wife and their children.

The struggle between the traditional view that the bride must live with her husband's people and the "we want to live alone" Western attitude is making headlines in Malayan courts in divorce cases.

Girls have complained that some mothers-in-law torment them by jeering if their husband is unfaithful and even badger their sons into taking second wives—partly to hurt the first wife but also to bring another unpaid servant into the household.

'Neighbor' has new meaning for widow

The word "neighbor" has taken on a new meaning in Sandwich East township near Windsor, Ont., for Mrs. Arthur Vanderbeck.

Her house burned to the ground several weeks ago. It was the climax of a succession of tragedies for the woman with three dependent children.

Her husband, ill for three years with cancer, died a little more than two years ago and it took her two years to pay for the cemetery lot and headstone.

She made the final payment and the next day, while visiting the cemetery, her house burned down. All her clothing, food and furniture were destroyed.

The $3,000 insurance wasn't nearly enough, and that's when the neighbors stepped in.

Their efforts were a little unorganized at first. A card party brought in $300.

Fred Moore, a service station operator, decided labor would be the main expense, so the community organized a collective do-it-yourself effort. They have nearly finished a three-bedroom home without a cent for labor.

A contractor donated material for a foundation and another one put it in. Five electricians spent one day each. Eighteen men put up the frame and shingled the roof in six hours. Another gang did the insulation.

THE OBSERVER

BY HUGH PEARCE

The Financial Statement of the Bassano Municipal Hospital District appeared in the Bassano Herald last week and, from all appearances, all is well with the financial condition of the hospital. The statement shows definitely that the Hospital District is fortunate to have at the helm some men well experienced in business affairs as well as having that sense of civic responsibility so necessary to the operation of a municipal organization.

While the financial condition of the hospital leaves little to be desired, the physical condition of the building gives plenty of opportunity for criticism. When the Bassano Hospital was erected, away back when Bassano was just a dot on the map, it was, no doubt, an up to date country hospital. Today, however, the plan of the building is so obsolescent that overhead and maintenance costs are probably more than necessary, due largely to the inconvenience caused the staff by the obsolete building. Corridors and doorways are too narrow to allow moving a patient from room to room merely by wheeling the patient, bed and all. Instead, the patient must be taken out of bed, the bed taken apart and several trips made between the rooms before the patient is put back in his bed again. This takes time and professional time costs money! This example of inconvenience and added cost of operation, due to the obsolete building, is only one of a dozen that I could mention but it will suffice to support my contention that the time has come when Bassano should have a new hospital building. We do not need a large or ornate building but it should be planned to take advantage of all the labor saving ideas and devices which have been discovered or invented since the old building was first constructed.

From time to time we hear rumors that a new hospital building is being planned but the building season will soon be upon us and, if it is planned to erect a building this year, it is time that the plans were completed, arrangements for financing well under way and tenders called for the construction very shortly.

How about it? Is there any new news?

TOWN TOPICS

The Anglican Ladies Guild wish to express their sincere thanks to Mr. Stan Haskayne for the use of his shop, to Mrs. Winnifred Stiles and Miss Betty Cappleman for serving and to the general public for supporting the Bake Sale held on Feb. 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Eastman have returned home after an extended trip to warmer climates.

Cliff Schaffer hit the jackpot when he won the Curling Club raffle last Friday.

Simeon Lang has returned to Bassano after a couple of months in the East.

The entertainment sponsored by the Quonset Junior High School was held in the hall last Friday night and was voted an unqualified success.

The entertainment consisted of short plays and other features and all pointed to the large amount of planning and practice which must have been done to make the event the huge success it was. The hall was filled and the public support for the project was very gratifying.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Clark recently. Mr. and Mrs. Robert McFarland and family and Mrs. Bessie Patterson of Medicine Hat were present, also Mrs. Harry Heryford of Gem. The couple received many cards and good wishes and bouquets of flowers.

Learn to control the backboards

The basketball team which controls the ball on rebounds off the backboards usually is the winning team. This is a basketball axiom. Here's a drill which will help your team improve its rebounding.

Two or three men are stationed under the basket. The ball is shot against the backboard from the free throw line. Players try to recover the rebound. The player doing the shooting should try to mix up his shots—hard, slow, off various parts of the backboard, etc.

Players often will attack this drill with more enthusiasm if it is made competitive in the form of a contest to see which player recovers the most rebounds.

One way to lick tension

That bothersome tension which often creeps over people at work, in school or in the home often can be eased by the following simple but effective drill. It can be done while standing, sitting or lying down.

Take a series of slow, easy, deep breaths in regular rhythm. On the inhale tense slightly all over your body. On the exhale, try to let everything go as loose and relaxed as can be. When you think you are as limp as possible, take another small inhale and try to let go even more.

Try it a few times—it really works!

Knee action in skiing

One of the most important parts of skiing is your knee action. Many skiers make the mistake of trying to keep their legs too rigid.

Home Workshop

The tables in the above sketch show the construction and proportions of some very early examples to be seen in the American Wing of the Metropolitan Museum. In early times when a man built his own house as well as his furniture trestle tables were popular. With modern power tools the construction of these tables is quite simple. Their good lines and utility make them favorites with home craftsmen. Directions for the three sizes which we have found to be the most popular for today's homes are on pattern 390. The price of the pattern is 35c. The Early American Reproductions Packet of patterns for making five other authentic museum pieces will be mailed for $1.50.

Helicopter speeds soil survey work

In 1952 and 1953 it took two summers for the University of Alberta soil survey crew to explore two and a half million acres in the Valleyview-Whitcourt section using pack horses.

Last year, Bill Odynsky, in one short season, conducted a survey covering 10 and a half million acres by using a helicopter. Dr. J. D. Newton, chairman of the soil survey committee says he believes this is the first time in Canada that a helicopter has been used for soil survey work.

Seaweed industry booms in Denmark

Denmark is not usually regarded as a country well endowed with natural raw materials, but off her shores she has a source of considerable wealth, and in recent years this has been developed almost into a national industry.

It was in 1943 that a Danish engineer, discovered in the Kattegat a certain type of seaweed containing agar-agar, a gelatinous substance which previously had been imported from Japan. It is not dead matter, as many people think, but is a living ocean plant growing on the sea bed. Now there are four large factories engaged in processing this seaweed, which is rich in carbohydrates.

The supply seems endless, and owing to the evenness of the climate the seaweed is of a uniform growth and density rarely found in other waters. The industry has developed rapidly in recent years.

The Korean government once maintained a ministry of etiquette and ceremony.

Corsets were first introduced in France about the time of the French revolution. The United States grows more than 70 percent of the world's corn crop.

The ones that got away

By WALT ABRAMS, ESTEVAN

Chairman Track and Field Committee A.A.U. of C (Sask. Branch)

"Canada has no Track and Field stars?" I don't believe it! The stars are here, but they "get away" or are not developed. Were these athletes in England, Russia—or hockey, the money, facilities and coaching would be gladly provided.

In my limited experience as a coach, I have handled eight potential Olympic contenders but none ever reached the trials.

One girl in a mid-west Saskatchewan town had everything. The provincial junior javelin record was around 68 feet in those days and she threw a homemade heavier javelin over 100 feet. She broad-jumped consistently over 15 feet and high jumped around five feet. I tried to persuade her to go to University where a brilliant track career awaited her. She didn't believe she was that good and I couldn't convince her.

Another outstanding Grade 6 girl stood 5'7", weighed 130 pounds, and had terrific leg power. Her times were: 75 yards (7.5), high jump (4'8") with a well executed western roll, broad jump (15'4"), discus 79'8", javelin 75'4", and had a perfect build for a shot putter. Lacking public school competition, but hoping to keep her interest up, we entered her in the senior broad jump in the High School meet. To our consternation she smashed the provincial record on her first jump. Fortunately for us two other girls beat her for the next two years I tried in vain to convince the High School Track executive to admit promising public school students to their meet. By the time she reached High School she had lost all interest because we were too shortsighted to provide the competition she needed.

I lost my best girl sprinter, who had junior times of 6.2 for the 50, 9.1 seconds for the 75, and 12.0 for the 100, because she left school at the end of Grade 10 to become a stenographer.

Another girl had a marvelous throwing arm. She didn't believe that she could be in the British Empire games, if she trained. However, in the provincial meet she beat the girl who did represent Canada two years later.

Saskatchewan's best potential decathlon man was lost because an over-protective mother destroyed his invitation to the Olympic Training Plan and another one "got away".

It's a short bridge from the fair athlete to the good one, and shorter still on to the Olympics and the bridge is "work". If I can convince you young people of this then the good ones won't get away and Canada can start to take her rightful place in the Track and Field world.

Problems face carefree Eskimo

From being a carefree easy-going Joe, the Eskimo of today is faced with a shortage of animals he hunts and traps, income tax, and all the things which civilized man has wished upon himself says the Sault Ste. Marie Star.

He gets family allowance, so must send his children to school where they learn how primitive their parents are. Parents, as they get older will be forced to leave their igloos and live in houses, to keep up with the Eskimo who maybe have modern ideas.

Before the coming of the white man to those frozen, unproductive wastelands, the Eskimo was happy in a fatalistic way. When there was food, he ate, and when the icy blizzards kept him buried he tightened his belt and chewed his sealskin boots for sustenance.

He had only one worry then. Today he is probably making payment on a dozen modern articles he has learned to need. In falling for the white man's bait he has traded his iceberg for a bunch of ulcers.

SYLPHLIKE LINES

Stories of how the movie stars attain their sylphlike measurements may make entertaining reading but their methods may not suit the average person who wishes to shed some unwanted pounds. For those who are really much overweight, the doctor is the logical person to consult, so that a program may be planned suitable to the patient's age and physical condition. The prescription will probably include plenty of outdoor exercise and cutting down on too rich foods and between-meal snacks.

RED CROSS

Reports to you who give

VOLUNTEER women workers of the Red Cross gather each day at the Workrooms in the Provincial Headquarters, Regina, to give their time and skill with needle and thread. They are only part of a large number scattered throughout Saskatchewan and Canada, who help to make over 300,000 articles each year as well as over three million surgical dressings.

Ever since the First World War, the busy fingers of thousands of women have made great quantities of much-needed emergency clothing. During the wars, it was knitted items that were in demand. Nowadays, it is clothing for displaced and destitute children in other lands. Victims of wars, earthquakes and floods, there seems to always be a great need for basic necessities. Here at home, children and babies whose homes have been destroyed by fire often require of warm clothing and Red Cross will always stand ready to give wherever and whenever the need arises.

The contributions of Saskatchewan people provide these willing workers with the materials and in turn, the amount of clothing that can be made up depends on the kindness of each Red Cross supporter.

SURPRISED

Even the prosecutor was surprised.

"Are you telling the truth?" demanded the prosecutor, Paul Delaney, when the defendant denied at his trial in Vancouver that he had stolen an overcoat.

"Well, as a matter of fact, I'm not," replied the accused man.

"Six months," said Magistrate Gordon Scott. 3182

Jane Ashley Says

"Corn Starch Makes Smoother Pie Fillings!"

CHERRY PIE

- 2 1/2 tablespoons BENSON'S or CANADA Corn Starch
- 3/4 cup granulated sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 cup juice, drained from cherries
- 3 cups canned cherries, drained
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 recipe pastry
- 2 tablespoons butter

COMBINE BENSON'S or CANADA Corn Starch, sugar, salt and cherry juice in saucepan.

PLACE over medium heat and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and boils.

ADD drained cherries and lemon juice; remove from heat.

PREPARE pastry; line 9-inch pie pan with 1/2 the pastry rolled 1/8 inch thick.

FILL with cherry mixture; dot with butter.

ROLL out remaining pastry; make several slits for steam to escape.

PLACE over cherries; seal well and flute edge.

PLACE pie in oven on lowest rack position.

BAKE in hot oven (450°F.) 10 minutes; reduce heat to moderate (350°F.) and bake 1 hour longer or until crust is brown.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

a rough mount

By ELEANOR DEVINE

EVERYONE felt sorry for airman Davey Cox when he came home from the war. He limped badly and his hair was grey. It didn't help any to have the whole county know that while he was in the hospital his girl had married a cattle broker John Jenks, the ranch manager and a bit of a gossip, kept saying that Davey seemed sorry he'd survived the crack-up that killed his buddies.

Sitting in the patio, waiting for moonrise several evenings after Davey's return, some of the L-M Bar oldtimers were telling the new duds about him. "Won't even try to sit a horse," Jenks said. "And he used to be top hand at rodeos," chimed in Janey, his wife. "The pilot is supposed to be last to bail out," cut in one of the duds.

"And how do you know he wasn't?" Clare, young owner of the L-M Bar spoke crisply. "All the men jumped. Davey was the only one to survive 10 days at sea."

There was a pause. No one knew how much later a hesitant voice said, "Howdy, folks." It was Davey.

As Clare gripped his hand in her small, hard paw, she thought how old "the boy next door" seemed. One of the new girls offered Davey her chair and there was an embarrassed, pitying silence as he quietly accepted.

Davey Cox spent a lot of time at the L-M Bar that summer. Riding in from a day inspecting herds or entertaining duds, Clare would find him sitting in the patio or on the veranda, talking with someone. Often, she caught the singsong of self sorrow in his voice and her greeting would be gruff.

One hot, dry afternoon in August, the shaded veranda was crowded with weary, sunburned duds, ranch hands and neighbors. What talk there was centered about fires reported in the forests above Witch Lake, 30 miles away. Suddenly Jenks rushed up, excitedly. "The rangers just broadcast for help. All men are drafted for fire duty. Saddle up and meet in town in half an hour. There'll be trucks to get us there in a hurry."

More Comfort Wearing FALSE TEETH

Here is a pleasant way to overcome loose plate discomfort. FASTEETH, an improved powder, sprinkled on upper and lower plates holds them firmly so that they feel more comfortable. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH today at any drug counter.

Discovers Way to Shrink Painful Piles

Here is a nice, clean, easy way to get real relief from the nagging distress of swollen, painful piles without the inconvenience of ointments, pile pipes or suppositories.

The secret is in taking just one small Hem-Roid Tablet, with water, two or three times a day. Works through effective INTERNAL action. Quickly eases constipation, relieves itching, soreness and pain. Helps shrink piles and permits them to heal.

Why suffer needlessly when Hem-Roid offers you so much. Get a package today. See for yourself how nice Hem-Roid is to use, how effective it is and how much more comfort it will quickly bring you. All drug stores. Low cost. Money refunded if you are not 100% pleased.

EAT ANYTHING WITH FALSE TEETH

If you have trouble with plates that slip, rock and cause sore gums—try Brimms Plasti-Liner. One application makes plates fit snugly without powder or paste, because Brimms Plasti-Liner hardens permanently to your plate. It relines and reties loose plates in a way no powder or paste can do. Even on old rubber plates you get good results at once to a year or longer. YOU CAN EAT ANYTHING! Simply lay soft strip of Plasti-Liner on troublesome upper or lower. Bite and it molds perfectly. Easy to use, tasteless, odorless, harmless to you and your plates. Removable as directed. Plate cleaner included. Money back if not completely satisfied.

Available at all Drug-Counters.

BRIMMS PLASTI-LINER

The men scattered and the girls gathered about the corral to watch the horses lassoed, saddled and packed. Clare was striding through the veranda after gathering emergency rations when she saw Davey Cox still sitting in his usual corner. Characteristically, she hooked her thumbs over her rope belt as she looked down at him. "Aren't you going?" she queried.

"I'm sure the rangers don't want cripples," he answered.

Clare's face burned with an old anger as she groped for words. "Everyone treats you like a cripple because you act like one," she flared at last. "And you feel like a cripple because you think and act like one. People turn out pretty much as they really plan."

"After all," she concluded, "life's a rough mount but you've got to ride it."

Slowly, silently, Davey pulled himself to his feet. His leg dragged badly as he walked away, but his head was high. Clare hoped desperately that her words had been the right ones.

Later she learned that Davey had made the last relief truck for Witch Lake. "He looked plum tucked but mad as a bull," Jenks reported.

Daily the fires spread and daily new recruits passed the ranch on their way north. Clare found herself fighting an impulse to run up to a stranger, any stranger, with a message for Davey Cox.

The news bettered at last and the men began to straggle back. Clare was in the big ranch kitchen, checking menus, when the L-M Bar men came. She heard someone come into the kitchen, but for some reason she could not explain, she tried to keep her eyes on her task. Then, despite herself, she turned. It was Davey, blackened from head to foot. "Just wanted to tell you," he said firmly. "It was a good fight. I enjoyed it."

Then he walked quickly away. She realized that in another minute she would have been in his arms and crying. She wondered if he knew.

After that the L-M Bar people saw little of Davey Cox. Clare heard he was taking over active management of his ranch at last. The hands told her they ran into him at all hours, riding his range. Jenks gossiped. "Ordered three new pair of boots, he did. Had to with all the trampin' he's doin'. Heard tell he's goin' to keep walkin' 'til he wears out that limp!"

The winter seemed longer than usual. Clare was glad when spring brought the first duds and the responsibility of planning the L-M Bar rodeo.

Surprise entry was Davey Cox. Clare tried to tell him how pleased she was to have him, but Davey didn't seem to pay any attention to her welcome, nor to the congratulations of friends who kept stopping by to pump his hand. He went right on checking gear and telling everyone, "Wait 'til you see my new pony go. He's really a rough mount!"

After that Clare avoided him, even when he won the steer-roping match and took honors in bronc riding. People began to tell her Davey was looking for her late in the afternoon and, suddenly shy, she started through the crowd to the house. Then she saw him coming toward her. The limp was almost gone and his grey hair didn't make him look old any more because his face was tanned and happy. She didn't get in a word about the prizes he had won, for he started talking right away. "I won because I planned to," he said. "Now, I hope you'll marry me. I've planned that, too." He had her in his arms before she could really answer and the crowd cheered as they kissed.

It wasn't until months later, after a long honeymoon, and as they set about combining their two ranches, one for duds and one for cattle, that Clare realized that this was the way she had dreamed her life, too.

Precarious steeplejacking job shared by husband-wife team

Mrs. Jaunetta Masters has little time to worry, as her steeplejack husband clambers up and down smokestacks, watertowers and other tall structures.

She's too busy looking out for herself, because she works along with him.

This unusual husband-and-wife work team got its start four months ago when Robert Lee Masters, 27, of Clarksburg, W. Va., fell in love with Jaunetta, a 4-foot 9-inch blonde.

"Jaunetta said there was no trick to climbing dizzy heights, so I asked her if she'd like to work for me," Masters said. "That was all the urging she needed. Now she's my helper."

Hesitant at first

Jaunetta admits she was a little hesitant at first but now she's getting used to dizzy heights.

"The first day I reported on the job with Bob, I found that the longer I stayed on the ground, the less I wanted to go up on the tower," she said. "But I have four years' work ahead of me before I get a union card, and I figured the sooner I got started, the better."

Masters says his wife is only a "fair" steeplejack now, but "give her another six months and she'll be able to climb anything I can."

In fact, Jaunetta's boss said, "I'm afraid that I won't be able to keep her at home at all. She really likes the work."

One of the first drawbacks Mrs. Masters encountered was her size. Her tiny figure didn't quite fit some of the standard equipment—of steeplejacking—the bosun's chair for instance.

"I kept trying to slip out," she said. "When you're up in the air, things like that can happen only once."

Special chair for wife

Masters, like a dutiful hubby, made his wife safe by ordering a special chair.

Bob and Jaunetta recently finished painting a water tower atop a hospital at Hempstead, Pa., near Pittsburgh.

Masters said he's trying to interest other members of his family in steeplejacking. His brother-in-law, Jules Dornbusch, already works with them.

Jaunetta said she and her husband want to have children, but "only after we settle down."

"Just think, if we had children now, one mistake up there and the kids would have no mother," she said.

OUR HOSPITAL

BY S.H. EDWARDS

Is it because the authorities are remiss in keeping the country roads opened up or is it because the state of the health of our residents is of the best? We hope it is the latter suggestion! We ask the question because the admissions to the hospital for the past week or so have been very few. At this time last year the hospital beds were just about all occupied but this year there is plenty of room.

In last week's issue of the Bassano Herald we published a summary of the Auditor's Financial Report. So far there has been no comment from anyone on what the report revealed. It is hoped that enough interest will be aroused by the publication of those figures to bring out a few comments, even if they only tell us that the report is not understood! For a long time now it has appeared to us that the ratepayers of the Bassano Municipal Hospital District take their hospital too much for granted. That is not as it should be. No matter what you think about it, your hospital is your business and any business will thrive only when it is attended to by its owners. Granted, you have elected a Board of your representatives to carry on your business for you and results have demonstrated that your Board is efficient, but it is safe to say that your Board, as individuals, would be very pleased to hear from the ratepayers, either by way of commendation or by criticism. This thought is left with you for this week. If it bears fruit it will have been worth while.

HOME AND SCHOOL NEWS By Mrs. Ken Rust

There was a record attendance at the regular monthly meeting of the Bassano Home and School Association held in the Armouries on Monday night.

Two letters of thanks were read, one from the Student's Union expressing their appreciation to those who made the recent Bake Sale a success. The other letter conveyed the thanks of Mrs. Robinson and her class to Mr. Sawatzky for his assistance while their class program was presented.

The subject of vitamin pills was discussed. A letter was read from the manufacturer in which it was stated that vitamin capsules could be supplied to the Home and School Association in large quantities at a nominal cost. It was decided to contact Dr. Mason in regard to the content of the pills.

Mr. Spivey, Finance Chairman, announced that an Amateur Night sponsored by the local group would be held in the Community Hall on March 9th. He requested that all members assist in making this a successful evening and mentioned that entries from other districts would be appreciated.

Mrs. N. Toole gave a brief report on her dancing and tumbling classes. The proceeds from this project, amounting to $72.00, was turned over to the secretary treasurer. A motion was made that this money be retained in a trust fund to be used for the furtherance of physical education in the Bassano community. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Toole and her assistants for the fine effort they have put forth in conducting such a worth while physical education program for the local children. Those assisting Mrs. Toole are Mrs. R. Brent, pianist; Mrs. D. Garrick, attendance recorder; Mrs. N. McKinnon for making bean bags; Mrs. J. Young, story teller for primary grades; Mrs. M. Knight and Mrs. C. McKinnon, who taught the tumbling.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Toole, program convenor, introduced Mrs. White, teacher of Home Economics at Rosemary, who was guest speaker of the evening. She gave an interesting resume of the course in home economics, showing that the girls were trained in cooking, sewing and general home management.

The program was appropriately concluded with an impressive "Founders Day Candle Lighting Ceremony" conducted by Mrs. Fraser. She gave a brief history of our local association, the highlights of which were compiled by Mr. Edwards. Mrs. Kandt's class won the room prize for January. A delicious lunch was then served by the Social Convenor.

RADIANT GISELE AMYOT, 19-year-old queen of the Quebec Winter Carnival, waves to the crowd following colorful coronation ceremonies in the Quebec City Coliseum. Gisele, a long distance telephone supervisor, won the title in competition against six other pretty candidates. The pucky snowman at the left is Bonhomme Carnaval, symbol of the winter show which continued until February 14.

CALIFORNIA'S DELIGHT—That's the expression to describe the glow of delight experienced by southern California chamber of commerce members when viewing this picture. It shows a woman wearing a warm, quilted suit as she views exhibits at a deep-sea aquarium—in usually balmy Miami, Fla., during a recent cold snap.

"WHAT'LL I DO WITH HIM?"—Human children aren't the only ones who make a monkey out of mama. Mother chimp at the London, England, zoo has been going round-and-round with baby. And sleepy-time is still hours away.

JOHN KEITH MacDONALD, 43, right, one of Canada's most wanted men, is taken into custody by RCMP constable. He's a suspect in B.C. post office theft.

TRIM—Portrait neckline, faced in white, highlights this Navy silk-type linen sheath for spring-time. High waistline accents effect. It's Oleg Cassini's New York salute to the long-time favorite color.

LISTEN TO THE PAINTINGS—"Shape, line and color can be listened to." So says Mrs. Ann Mittleman, shown with two of her creations. She should know. That's how the 58-year-old New York City artist receives her inspiration. She listens to a symphony or other composition, then plugs her ears to shut out unwanted distractions. Wielding her brush instead of a baton, she then "composes" on canvas; translating sound into color and line.

"...IANKS"—Foam-flecked nose is this Honduran lad's eloquent accent to a smile of enjoyment after a deep draft of his daily free milk ration. He's one of some 45,000 children who benefit from foods supplied by the United Nations Children's Fund. U.N. is working with the Honduran government to set up a country-wide child feeding program which is designed to supplement the traditional diet of tortillas and black beans.

FASHIONABLE?—It is, on a chilly beach. This terry cloth tent-robe is designed to keep milady warm after a swim. Size of the London, England, creation makes it appear useful also as a dressing tent. It's styled by Louis London.

SUBMARINE BRONC BUSTER—British frogman rides a wicked-looking mount in the hydro-dynamic laboratory at Teddington, England. Torpedo, deactivated, is mounted for testing in a tank filled with specially filtered water which allows maximum visibility from observation ports in background. Nearness of windows is an optical illusion. They're nearly 100 feet away, on opposite side of the tank from the camera.
